Aver's Cherry Pectoral, For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimaion, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a re ble protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is of the same time the most effectual remedy that can e given for incipient consumption, and the dan erous affections of the throat and lungs. of success at last. Last night I had the pleasure of attending a Musical Soiree at St. Mary's School still under charge of its old Rector, Rev. Dr. Smedes. A most excellent opportunity here presented itself for observing the array of Raleigh beauty and the representation, it was easy to see, was a good one. The ladies here (judging from those I met telligent and quick at repartee, showing to advantage either in the drawing-room or the ball-room, or at social gatherings. In personal appearance they are pretty and attractive and many possess rare claims to beauty. But their cleverness and easy manners is what one is decidedly impressed with. The Soirce fully repaid the fair and mirable, displaying the first order of talent. Where there were so many pretty and attractive young ladies, who sang so well, it would seem invidious on our part to appear to discriminate. Yet there was no voice, which, in its melody, richness and power, so captivated our ear, as that of one of Wilmington's fair young daughter, Miss Lou B. We believe this fact was generally acknowledged even by Raleigh people. The entertainment, viewed in every aspect, was certainly creditablethe large attendance during such bad weather was a sufficient manifestation of the appreciation and delight in which it
